Eyewitness Story of Landing

JAN 24 1944

WE LAND 30 MILES FROM ROME

By DON WHITEHEAD
Representing Combined U. S. Press

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY IN BEACHHEAD SOUTH OF ROME, Jan. 22 (AP)—We walked in behind the German lines with hardly a shot being fired in a most sensational amphibious operation.

It was so easy and simply done and caught the Germans so completely by surprise that as I write this dispatch six hours after the landing American troops are literally standing with their mouths open and shaking their heads in utter amazement.

"Maybe," said Lieut.-Col. Edgar C. Doleman, "the war is over and we don't know it."

"I still don't believe it," said a Fifth Army infantryman who had made other amphibious landings.

The Doughboys swarmed ashore at 2 a. m. expecting to have to fight their way in over the beach through barbed wire and mine fields. I landed with the second wave at 2:10 a. m.

Then we began walking, expecting each moment that the enemy would open up with a blinding flash of fire. But we just walked.

Nothing happened in my sector.

There were only a few scattered shots fired and most of them came from our own tense troops.

To the north there was a sound of gunfire, but it was very light and at this early stage there was every indication that Gen. Clark's Fifth Army had pulled a brilliant maneuver to hit the enemy from the side and open the road to Rome.

The next few hours will decide that, when the expected German counterattack develops.

Patton Reviews Pole Troops in Egypt

CAIRO, Jan. 22 (AP)—Lieut.-Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., commander of the American Seventh Army in its victorious Sicilian Campaign, today reviewed Polish troops in Egypt whose armored columns stretched for several miles across the desert.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Jan. 22 (AP)—The mighty American-British invasion force which landed successfully before dawn today deep behind the Nazi lines, was said in an official announcement tonight to have made "satisfactory progress," an indication the Allies were pushing inland toward the lifelines of the Germans' winter fortifications in the Gustav and Adolf Hitler lines to the south. Air blows knocked out "all airfields in the Rome area except one" and blocked enemy rail lines supplying the capital from the north, headquarters reported. The landing, a complete surprise, "constitutes a grave menace" to German lines of communication, it was stated officially. (Earlier details on Page 2.)

New Invasion Hits 30 Miles From Rome

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN

ALGIERS, Jan. 22 (INS)—American and British shock troops, spearheaded by Rangers and Commandos, stormed ashore from amphibious landing craft deep behind enemy lines in western Italy today in a sudden thrust which German sources said put the Allies within 30 miles of Rome itself. A special Allied communique, while withholding exact place of the landings, said the operation was "successful, and the situation is developing satisfactorily."

The German news agency, DNB, broadcast a dispatch which placed the scene of the operations at "between the Nettuno and the Tiber estuary," and admitted the harbor of Nettuno had been occupied.

Nettuno stands astride the coastal road to Rome 32 miles below the Italian capital and 57 miles northwest of the Garigliano river battleline.

The port city, which holds great strategic value, is 63 miles northwest of Cassino and is located at a vulnerable spot in the Pontine marshes.

The landing was supported by a furious air and naval barrage. Warships and planes are continuing to pound the enemy as Fifth Army landing parties establish the beachhead.

Units of the United States, British and Greek navies participated in the landing operation while Dutch and French ships supported it with gunfire from the Tyrrhenian sea.

POUNDED FOR 3 DAYS

Allied naval vessels, including at least six cruisers, bombarded the landing areas for three days before spearheads went ashore.

(BBC quoted a German propaganda agency assertion that the Allies landed at a point only 28 miles below Rome, NBC reported in New York.)

According to the Allied communiue, Lieut.-Gen. Clark's troops poured ashore "on the west coast of Italy deep in the rear of the present enemy front-line positions."

Reuter's news agency said the new landing outflanked not only

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Jan. 22 (AP)—A spokesman for the Allied Mediterranean airforce announced this afternoon that an Allied air campaign had knocked out all "airfields in the Rome area except one." The bombings also blocked all railroads in the Leghorn area except one, while "rail blocks in the Rome area are for the most part effective," the spokesman added.

RAF Flattens City in Saxony

By TOM YARBROUGH

LONDON, Jan. 22 (AP)—The RAF's campaign to flatten German industrial targets crushed Magdeburg in Saxony last night under more than 2000 long tons of bombs as the major phase of a great aerial operation which included a smaller attack on Berlin.

The new blows against Germany cost the RAF 55 bombers one of the heaviest losses suffered in a year.

Probably 1000 planes took part in the widespread operations of the RAF during the night, striking also into northern France and laying mines.

The night's losses were the heaviest since 58 bombers went down during a great assault on Berlin last Aug. 23.

Magdeburg, city of 300,000 on the left bank of the Elbe river, 83 miles southwest of Berlin, is a junction for railways to Leipzig, Kassel and Hamburg.

Hundreds of American soldiers, newly arrived in Britain, experienced their first air raid last night as the biggest German bombing force in months struck at London and southeast England.

Ninety enemy planes roared across the channel in two separate attacks, one before midnight and the other in the early hours this morning.

About 30 of the planes reached the London area, touching off a full-throated anti-aircraft barrage.

People crowded into shelters by the thousands, but doughboys could be seen clustered in little groups in West End doorways absorbed by the excitement of their first air attack.

Although it was a show for most of the observers, the raids caused considerable property damage, a number of casualties and grim aerial battles. Eight Nazi planes were shot down in the first attack, two of them by a rookie pilot of a Mosquito.

GERMANY — Quick retribution came to Germany following the Nazi aerial raid on London, when hundreds of Allied bombers again smashed Magdeburg (arrow).

Soviet Restores Rail Supply Line

LONDON, Jan. 22 (AP)—Soviet capture of Mga, key rail junction 30 miles southeast of Leningrad, has reunited Russia's second city by rail with Moscow for the first time since the city was laid under siege by the Germans two years ago, Moscow dispatches reported today.

At the same time, Leningrad gained a permanent rail link to tap lend-lease supplies coming from the northern port of Murmansk through Volkhov. During the siege, Allied supplies had been reaching the northern city over a railway built on Lake Ladoga's ice and a highway wrested from the enemy a year ago.

(The German high command said today that Russian forces had landed on the southern shores of Lake Ilmen, but that Nazi counterattacks had smashed the bridgehead.

(This Russian assault, perhaps over the ice of the lake, apparently was aimed at flanking Staraya Russa, Nazi stronghold and railway terminal south of the lake.)

Capture of Mga, hailed by Premier Stalin yesterday in a special order of the day, liquidated the tip of a salient long held by the Germans southeast of the former Czarist capital.

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 22 (AP)—The Scandinavian Telegraph Bureau, a German controlled agency, quoted a Berlin military spokesman as saying today that the Russians are regrouping their forces in the Dnieper river bend front for a great new offensive soon.

NAVY FLIERS IN 2 RAIDS RIP BIG JAP BASE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP)—Two bombing raids within three hours on Paramushiro, major Jap naval base in the North Pacific, were announced by the Navy today.

Planes flew from the Aleutians over approximately 720 miles of the North Pacific to batter the base at the northern end of the Kurile chain.

Enemy installations on the southern coast of the island of Paramushiro were battered by the first of two groups of bombers to carry out the assaults last night. In the second raid the northern part of the enemy's naval stronghold was attacked.

Anti-aircraft fire was encountered only in the first raid, made at about midnight. One enemy fighter plane, the Navy reported, also endeavored ineffectively to drive off the first group of bombers but all our planes returned to their base without damage.

In the later raid no enemy planes were encountered and all planes returned without damage.

Pilot Eyewitnesses Tell of Coup in Italy

AN ADVANCED AIR BASE IN ITALY, Jan. 22 (AP)—Returning pilots who flew a sunrise cover for the Allied landings on the west coast of Italy said today they had seen little or no artillery fire from the shore and there were no fires on the beach.

Sweeping back and forth over the assault area in P-40 Warhawks at 8000 feet, the pilots found no enemy aircraft during their first few patrols.

Maj. Bruce Biddlecomb of Phoenix, Ari., leader of one patrol, said: "I could see boats on the shore and some vehicles on the beach. There were fires or explosions inland—possibly from our naval guns.

Lieut.-Col. Stuart C. Lydon of Stuart, Ia., who led a flight over the battlefield at 6:30 a. m., said he could see boats sweeping in from the sea.

"Our landing boats seemed to be moving into the beaches all right, a lot of our warships were shuttling back and forth past the beaches and I saw some of them firing," he added.

Maj. Robert Worley of Riverside, Cal., who led the first mission, reported landing craft were operating from ships about three miles off shore. He said there was a cloud layer at 4000 feet, but the weather was fine.

SPAATZ SEES NAZI AIR K.O. 'IN SUMMER'

LONDON, Jan. 22 (AP)—The German air force likely will be knocked out "in the summer," if there is reasonably good weather, Lieut.-Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, newly-named commander of U. S. strategic air forces for the invasion of Europe, said today.

Lt.-Gen. Spaatz

He indicated, in his first press conference since assuming his new command, that shuttle bombing between Britain and Italy might play an important part in the destruction of Germany's air power.

"Given the same sort of weather we had in the Mediterranean, I do not think the German airforce would last very long," he said.

"Do you anticipate," he was asked, "that the German air force likely will be knocked out?"

"That is what we expect to do," he replied.

AEF Develops Hedgehog Life

By AUSTEN LAKE

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND (by transport plane)—This operator has had no reason to unpack his luggage since leaving Boston two months ago. What's the use? Yesterday he was on England's instep with an infantry (censored). Today he is in its ear, with an armored unit, and instead of "boots, boots, boots, marching up and down again," it's wheels, gas fumes, motors and tractor treads. Indeed the U. S. taxpayer would feel much happier about his 20 per cent deduction if he could see the vast pools of motorized gear, like something out of H. G. Wells' "War of the Worlds," parked here and choking the surrounding land.

Imagine traffic at Tremont and Boylston sts., during the homegoing hour. Throw in Harvard sq. and the change in shifts at Fore River. Then double that in tanks, half tracks, scout cars, troop carrying trucks and jeeps, and you have the country surrounding this depot.

The infantry division where I spent last week lives a hedgehog life in hundreds of isolated billets scattered over 50 square miles. But this is a garrison center which, from the surrounding hills looks like rows of Lawrence textile mills.

You can't gain admittance to this area with a wide grin and a clean shirt. No, sir! You show your thumb prints, the fillings in your back teeth, your appendicitis scars and all the cards, credentials and passports you can muster. It's like breaking into the Norfolk farm colony.

With New Englanders

There are Bostonians and New Englanders here—not in gobs, but a fruit cake mixture with 42 other states. And there is only one system to filter them out. You shove off to the big drill fields and the firing ranges and the hills, wherever there are clusters of men in mist-gray jumpers. One unit, whose guns sounded like the magnified rip of cloth, was firing at man-sized silhouettes against a hill, and there I found Sergt. Charles El Florentino of 223 Chel-

Vaults Barren Of Killing Clues

CHICAGO, Jan. 22 (AP)—The latest lead in the puzzling murder in the Drake Hotel of wealthy Mrs. Frank Starr Williams took investigators to another blind alley today.

Two safety boxes in the hotel which Mrs. Williams, wife of a State Department attache, rented Wednesday a few hours before she was slain in her apartment by a middle-aged woman, were opened by officials who indicated the contents were of little aid in the investigation.

Mrs. Williams

Coroner A. L. Brodie, Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan and other officials were present, with the slain woman's husband, and Ernest Kunz, hotel manager, when the boxes were opened.

In one was jewelry, three diamond bracelets and a diamond brooch, which the coroner estimated were worth $30,000.

In the other box was a black cloth purse, property of Mrs. Williams, which Kunz said had been placed in the box by hotel employes for safekeeping after the slaying. The purse contained a roll of bills.

There were no letters, papers or other documents in either box; nothing, the investigators indicated, which apparently could cut through the many lines of investigation, so far frustrated, toward a solution of the gold coast killing.

While an inquest was continued to Feb. 8, investigators' interest had centered on the safety boxes and the fact Mrs. Williams had rented them the day she was slain.

Police said they were puzzled by this move, in view of the fact Mrs. Williams had registered at the hotel on Jan. 6 and had waited 13 days before leasing the boxes.

Police have learned, in questioning members of the victim's family, that she often wore valuable jewels and was wearing an expensive diamond ring when she was fatally shot Wednesday night.

A robbery motive was investigated but police said no valuables had been stolen from the apartment nor had the slayer taken any jewels from Mrs. Williams, having fled immediately after the shooting.

Nazi Reinforcement Army in Bulgaria

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 22 (AP)—A Budapest dispatch to the newspaper Dagens Nyheter reported today German reinforcements "in great strength" have arrived in Bulgaria.

Girl 'Baby Fagin' Bares R. I. Ring

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 22—A 16-year-old girl in a flame-colored sweater confessed today, police said, she had presided over a children's underworld, planning and scheming with her juvenile housebreakers while taking care of babies in the homes of prospective victims.

She is Ruth E. Valley, a demure brunette, who had been hired by a number of unwitting Providence parents to stay with babies in the evening.

Ruth and two youths of her age were held without bail for the grand jury. They are charged with breaking and entering on several occasions and theft of $600 in jewelry. In custody with the girl are Preston Strong and William Schlink.

NAMES AIDES IN RING

"I wanted to be near my boy friend and that's why I went for this exciting life," police quoted the alleged crime girl.

She said she meant 17-year-old Philip Dumas of Laura st., this city, a member of the gang. He was jailed last week for auto thefts. Another of the youths who sat at her feet while she literally rocked cradles with one hand and directed housebreaks with the other, police asserted, was her brother, a 13-year-old. He was committed to reform school a few hours before her arrest.

Detectives said Ruth outlined to them in detail how she and her young burglars operated.

HOW RING WORKED

Her story, they said, was that she looked for and obtained jobs taking care of babies whose parents went out in the evening. She became familiar with their houses. While the parents were out, she planned subsequent breaks into their homes.

When the time was right, the gang would steal an automobile. They would pick up Ruth and head for the better sections of the city. If the house of their choice was dark, Ruth would ring the bell. If no answer came, one of the youths would break in through a rear window, then admit Ruth and the others. Under her direction they would ransack and loot, according to the confession attributed to her by police.

In cases where the bell was answered, Ruth would merely ask for a fictitious person, apologize, and re-enter the car, where her gang awaited, detectives said.

They said a search of Ruth's home produced jewelry valued at $150. She explained to them, they stated, that she supervised division of the loot and threw away jewelry of little value.

City highway crews were pumping out designated catchbasins today in an effort to recover some of the stolen property.

$400 Pay for Vets Looms as Compromise

By FRANK REILLY
Boston American Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—With the House and Senate conferees admittedly deadlocked, the veterans' mustering-out pay dispute was put over today until 2 p. m. Monday because of inability of three Senate members out of the representation of five on the conference committee to attend.

Sen. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire was unable to get back to Washington in time, because of bad rail connections; Sen. Warren R. Austin of Vermont was ill, and Sen. Elbert D. Thomas of Utah was tied up on a Congressional delegation entertaining the President of Venezuela.

While a possibility loomed for a compromise at Monday's session—probably with a $400 maximum mustering-out pay figure—there was not too much optimism today over a quick decision.

Insistence of Senate members of the committee that $500, the figure set in the Senate bill passed before Christmas, was a more just payment than the House $300, sent the conferees into a deadlock yesterday.

At least one of the Senate conferees, Robert R. Reynolds, North Carolina, chairman of the Senate military affairs committee, told a reporter his group might agree to a compromise at $400.

Whatever decision comes out of the House (7 members) and Senate (5 members) conference is a foregone conclusion to be accepted by both branches of Congress.

Already the Senate conferees have agreed to House amendments denying discharge payments to:

1—Servicemen drawing over $200 a month base pay (above a captaincy).

2—Servicemen eligible for retirement pay.

3—Students at service schools, including the military and naval academies.

The Senators conferring with the seven Representatives sturdily continued to refuse acceptance, however, of House allowances of only $100 for men and women of the armed forces of less than 60 days' service and a maximum of $300 for those with longer periods in uniform.

These conferees likewise have agreed to provisions of the House bill under which veterans who left the service voluntarily because they were over 38 years old and veterans who were discharged for occupational reasons would be excluded from mustering-out pay benefits.

Meanwhile, today, Washington was stirred up over an asserted threat on the life of David Camelon, a Hearst newspaper reporter, by Chairman Andrew J. May of the House military affairs committee.

Shortly before Christmas, May, whose committee was expected to recommend that the total figue be $700, disappeared from Washington and went to his home in Kentucky.

"Why did you say that I sneaked out of Washington?" demanded the representative at an interview with Camelon and another Hearst reporter yesterday.

Camelon answered, "Because you left here without notice and because you left the Military Affairs Committee without authority to function.

"Mr. May," the reporter continued, "you consider yourself a powerful figure in Washington—a big man who can deprive the veterans of proper mustering-out pay.."

"I am a big man in Washington," shouted the infuriated May. "I'm sufficiently big to tell you this—if you say any more about me sneaking out of Washington you make arrangements with the undertaker before you do!"

DEMOCRATS SET 4TH TERM BALL ROLLING

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP)—The Democratic National Committee unanimously adopted a resolution today "earnestly soliciting" President Roosevelt "to continue as our great world humanitarian leader."

The committee approved a resolution, submitted by a committee headed byy Senator Green (D.) of Rhode Island, asserting the belief "our Allies are praying with us" that the President be re-elected.

The resolution, criticizing what it described as Republican attempts to base the presidential campaign on the "weakness and selfishness" of some elements of the American people, was gaveled through to approval by Robert E. Hannegan of St. Louis, elected earlier in the day to succeed Frank C. Walker, postmaster general, as national chairman.

Hannegan subsequently was voted authority to fix the date of this year's national convention. The committee selected Chicago as the convention city.

Green read to the committee the resolution. At one point it said:

"President Roosevelt's idealism must be imprinted in the peace."

The resolution accused Republicans of attempting to stir up partisan controversy.

Bennett declared he favored such action "even though it means Governor Tugwell, whom he regarded as "a very dangerous man," will stay in power.

"Wallace is a little too far to the left to suit me personally, but he is a competent man," Bennett asserted.

U. S. to Fix Farm Wages

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22—In a move unprecedented in all American farm history, a wage control program for agricultural workers, with maximum ceilings of $2400 a year, has been ordered by War Food Administrator Marvin Jones.

Aides of the administrator, who disclosed the plan, said War Food Administration (WFA) labor offices have been directed to set up state farm wage boards to hold hearings and establish maximum wages.

These groups would function much in the manner of the War Labor Board (WLB) in determining the ceilings for the industrial workers shortly after the 1942 wage stabilization act.

Hitler Picks His Big 3 to Fight Invasion

LONDON, Jan. 22 (AP)—Adolf Hitler has completed his anti-invasion command with the appointment of Marshal Erwin Rommel as inspector general for the defense of Europe, a London newspaper reported today as Allied transport chiefs in Britain announced completion of a "shadow" supply service for the armies that will attack western Europe.

Hitler has completely re-shuffled his high command in preparation for the Allied attack from Britain, according to neutral reports quoted by the Daily Express.

In his new role Rommel holds a post corresponding to that of Col.-Gen. Heinz Guderian, inspector general of tank forces, and Maj.-Gen. Adolf Galland, inspector general of the air force. None will be a field commander but each will be in supreme control of their respective services, it was said.

Field Marshal Karl von Runstedt has been transferred from command of the western defenses of Europe to southeastern Europe, where he will be in charge of the areas behind Field Marshal Fritz von Mannstein's armies retreating from Russia.

The Express said Field Marshal Maximilian von Weichs, who last was reported in charge of German forces in the Balkans, apparently has been dropped from the German defense setup.

Col.-Gen. Eduard Dietl, according to the Express informants, has been recalled from Finland and placed in command of reserve forces inside Germany proper, while the commands of Gen. Nikolaus von Falkenhorst in Norway and Hermann von Hannecken in Denmark have been confirmed by Hitler.

Field Marshal Georg von Kuechler, in command of forces in northern Russia, and Gen. Fromm, commanding German home forces, will divide command of the armies on the shortened Russian front.

Gen. Christensen of the air force has been ordered to garrison the Italian surrender and be ready to build[illegible] defense of Holland, while Gen. Dollman, Germany's best heavy artillery expert, has been placed in charge of all coastal batteries along the western invasion coast, the Express said.

The Allies "shadow" service will marshal all railways in Britain under an instant timetable by which hundreds of freight trains can be set in motion from arms storage depots to jumping off ports within a few hours, it was disclosed.

Each train in the shadow service carries a code number. For example, "ABC-217" might mean that a locomotive and 40 cars must be at depot "A" to load certain materials and be ready to leave at 3 p. m. on a given day and to travel by an indicated route to a designated port, arriving at 6 a. m. the following morning when the invasion green light is given. These code numbers will flash over the telegraph lines to train crews assembled for action.

Other invasion preparations include erection of three large depots for storing supplies by U. S. Army engineers. They worked 12 and 13 hours a day, sometimes more, to get the depots built quickly. One installation covers more than 500 acres and has 15 miles of railway to connect its 290 buildings.

8 Seized in Raid Admit 'Orgies' On Beacon Hill

Details of wild sex orgies on Beacon Hill within the shadow of the State House were revealed today when police nabbed eight persons, including two teen-aged Newton boys, and search was begun for several young girls believed to have taken part in sensuous shows before mixed audiences.

The revolting activities of the group were disclosed following a raid on a Joy st. "studio" located diagonally across the street from Station 3.

Possibility that the youngsters were part of a ring which performed throughout the State was seen with the arraignment in Worcester court of a hotel worker on a serious morals count involving two 16-year-old boys.

Boston police raided the studio in Joy st. after the two Worcester youths admitted they had made several trips there with the Worcester man. The youngsters also confessed to "appearing" at an Albany st., South End, night club.

The group held as suspicious persons at Joy st. station today ranged in age from 16 to 22. Formal charges were not placed against them pending completion of questioning to learn details of the ring's activities.

According to Worcester police, the orgies were given before drunken audiences of men and women. Several more arrests were expected in Worcester.

Capt. Francis M. Tiernan of Joy st. station said the "studio" was a remodeled plumbing shop. He said the owner is a 45-year-old Boston Navy Yard painter.

Two of the Boston group in custody admitted they had lived at the Joy st. place for three weeks, according to police.

Boston police raided the place after they were told of the Worcester boys' admissions. Lieuts. James J. McTiernan and P. Frank Carroll of Worcester police hurried to Boston to quiz the eight suspects.

Hearing in the case of Charles A. Winters, 38, of Main st., Worcester, on the morals charge was postponed to Feb. 5 to permit police to determine if he were part of the ring believed to be operating throughout the State.

'Bunk' and 'Nuts' Sinatra Reply to Jibe at Jive

By ROBERT THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 22 (AP)—Open warfare between the long-haired group and the bobby-sock crowd developed today as Conductor Arthur Rodzinski of the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra termed boogie woogie "one of the greatest causes of delinquency among American youth today"—to which Frank Sinatra answered "bunk."

In an interview with a newspaper at Camp Kilmer, N. J., where his 105-piece orchestra played an engagement last week, Rodzinski said the jive type of music leads to a "war degeneracy."

"Nuts," replied the King of Swoon.

"I come in contact with thousands of youngsters on the street and through letters they write me, and they are sane, normal human beings," replied Sinatra, here to make a movie.

Said Rodzinski: "Devotees of Sinatra are pitiful cases."

Sinatra: "Girls of the same age were wild about Valentino, Rudy Vallee and others, and they'll always be."

Rodzinski: "There is no need for swing music as long as there are such beautiful compositions as Strauss waltzes."

Sinatra: "Why do these long-hairs always knock the popular field? We never knock them."

Francis W. Kirslis, 17, of Bristol st., Cambridge, whose explanation for having $1288 in his pocket was that he "won it on the dogs," was held in $300 bail in Lowell court today, charged with breaking and entering and larceny.

The youth will be given a hearing Jan. 31. He is accused of taking the money from the home of Frank Brown, a Dracut farmer, whose home he visited recently.

Police said Kirslis had confessed but had not accounted for $792 more which he allegedly took from a dictionary in which the farmer had hidden the money.

Kirslis was arrested first in Nashua, N. H., on a Cambridge warrant charging him with being a stubborn child. When police asked him how he happened to be carrying a large sum, he calmly told them he had made it by gambling.

The Dracut farmer read about the affair in the Record-American and examined his dictionary cache. His money was gone. He told authorities and Kirslis was arrested in Cambridge.

Bond Buying Throng To Crowd Plymouth

Paying up to $1000 each in War Bonds for their tickets, more than 1500 persons will crowd the Plymouth Theater to capacity tomorrow night for the gala stage entertainment presented by the New England Sector War Bond Cavalcade.

F. W. Denio, state chairman of the Fourth War Loan drive, said the campaign will be given substantial impetus by the sell-out performance by Army comedians, musicians and actors.

After a week on the road, with performances in five Massachusetts cities, the cast of 75 enlisted men and eight WACS will come to Boston with a show already hailed as a hit. The entertainment will be presented tomorrow afternoon for service men only at the Plymouth.

A highlight of the Fourth War Loan in Boston will be the auctioning off, in the near future, of a Japanese war bond taken from an enemy officer killed in the battle of Tarawa and presented by Lieut. Eddie Albert, USNR, former movie star, to Miss Mabel Chin, petite American girl of Chinese ancestry.

BAT MURDER GIRL SUSPECT SURRENDERS

DUMONT, N. J., Jan. 22 (AP)—An 18-year-old, brown-eyed brunette walked into the Dumont police station early today and announced to Patrolman Walter Kipp she was the "Jane Doe" wanted in the baseball bat killing of Mrs. Ethel Hermann.

The girl identified herself as Caroline Twing of Wallingford, Ct., Prosecutor John J. Breslin of Bergen County said. She was booked on a charge of murder.

Robert P. Beegan, 26, of Dumont; Martin A. Hoffman, 18, formerly of Ballou ave., Dorchester, Mass., and Ruth Oberempt, 26, of Meriden, Ct., were charged yesterday with murder. The charge was changed from atrocious assault after Mrs. Hermann died.

Police asserted the quartet had attacked and robbed the woman of $4.25.

Adventist Leader Dies

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP)—William Warren Prescott, 88, for more than half a century a prominent leader in the Seventh Day Adventist church, died yesterday. He was a native of Alton, N. H.

Hercules Held

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 22 (INS)—Police held a 17-year-old youth today in more than 14 robberies, and described him as a human "battering ram" so powerfully built that his wrists could not be fitted into regulation handcuffs.

Emilio Guarino, 190-pound Hercules, is so sturdy, police said, that single-handed he battered down the doors of establishments he and two companions robbed and in one case easily trundled a 600-pound safe out of a store.

Nancy Oakes' Sale Brings Her $3600

NASSAU, Bahamas, Jan. 22 (AP)—Nancy Oakes de Marigny's tastily furnished but unpretentious cottage was stripped clean a day earlier than expected and so today's auction sale of furniture and objects of art was abandoned.

As bidders—and not a bargain hunter in the lot—poured out some 900 pounds sterling ($3600) for 400-odd articles that caught their eye, Nancy found herself unable to part with all her possessions and withdrew several valuable items while prospective buyers examined them hungrily. A $1 washtub brought $10, and a bicycle $110.

The nearest thing to a bargain was the purchase for 5 pounds 10 shillings ($22) of two hurricane shades which figured prominently in the trial of Nancy's husband, Alfred de Marigny, on a charge of murdering her father, Sir Harry Oakes. De Marigny was acquitted in November.

The jury that freed De Marigny recommended he be deported from the Bahamas. He moved to Havana, his wife accompanying him.

Nancy returned here to raise funds by auctioning her possessions, and to see if some part of her $2,000,000 to $4,000,000 inheritance could be freed from international exchange entanglements that left her a "penniless" rich girl, so short of funds she could not afford to pay 36 cents postage due on letters.

Apparently, the 19-year-old heiress was successful in winning restricted control of $12,000 yearly her father's will directed she be paid.

Official quarters reported she would be allowed to draw on her $1000 a month allowance by submitting bills for medical and living expenses. She also will be allowed to take from the colony the proceeds of the auction sale, and any savings bank balance she may have.

Quick Soups for Cold Days

By MARTHA LEE

THERE'S NOTHING BETTER than hearty soups on cold days. But they needn't take long hours to prepare, for short cuts in preparation can bring soup-making within the time budget of the busiest homemaker. There are several patterns of quick and easy soups, which can be varied in different ways.

For example, Quick Vegetable Soup for six, made with savory vegetables and half a pound of beef, cooks in just 40 minutes. What makes it quick is using ground beef instead of simmering meat slowly to make stock. Here is the recipe.

QUICK VEGETABLE SOUP

½ lb. ground beef
2 tsp. salt — 1 bay leaf
⅛ tsp. pepper — 6 cups water
1 tbsp. fat
½ cup chopped onion
1 cup green beans (fresh or canned), cut in 1-inch pieces
1 cup sliced carrots
2 cups medium chopped cabbage
½ cup chopped celery and leaves
3½ cups tomatoes

Brown ground beef in fat. Add onion, cook 3 minutes. Add salt, pepper, bay leaf, water, green beans (if fresh), carrots, cabbage, celery and leaves. Cover, cook until vegetables are tender. Add tomatoes the last 10 minutes of cooking; and the green beans, if canned ones are used. Makes 6 servings.

Makings of this vegetable soup can be varied by substituting vegetables on hand. Potatoes, turnips, corn, lima beans, peas—most vegetables, in fact, blend right in and contribute flavor besides adding their own special food values. Left-over cooked vegetables may be used for part or all of the fresh vegetables, by adding the cooked vegetables with the tomatoes. For extra vitamins and minerals, liquids saved from vegetable cooking may be used instead of part or all of the water. This soup is almost a meal, and needs only bread and a filling dessert to complete a good lunch or supper.

Cream soup, starring one or more vegetables, can easily be soup-in-a-hurry. As a pattern take Quick Potato Soup, which is especially timely now when potatoes are so plentiful. The potatoes diced small cook in 10 to 15 minutes. Then the soup is heated just hot enough to serve. The milk is not boiled.

QUICK POTATO SOUP

3 cups diced potatoes
2 tbsp. chopped onion
1½ cups boiling water
2 tbsp. fat — 1½ tsp. salt
1 qt. milk — Pepper

Cook potatoes, fat, and onion in the boiling water. Add milk, salt and pepper. Heat and serve. This soup can be made, starting with diced turnips or carrots, or finely cut spinach, green peas, or a combination of vegetables in place of potatoes.

Still another quick soup, especially good in midwinter, is quick turnip soup, made with grated raw turnip. The grating saves cooking time.

QUICK TURNIP SOUP

1 qt. milk — 1 tbsp. flour
1 onion, cut in half
2 tbsp. melted fat
2 cups grated raw turnip
1 tsp. salt — Chopped parsley

Heat the milk in a double boiler with the onion, add flour and fat, which have been well blended, then the turnip and salt. Cook until the turnip is tender, or for about 10 minutes, and remove the onion. Sprinkle chopped parsley over the soup just before serving. Makes 6 servings.

HITLER CAN'T SPLIT ALLIES, REDS INSIST

MOSCOW, Jan. 22 (AP)—Any hopes Hitler may have held that he had driven a political wedge between the Soviet Union and her Allies seemingly have been dispelled by Alexander Scherbakov, director of the Soviet Information Bureau.

Speaking before Marshal Stalin and other Russian leaders at a solemn observance of the anniversary of Lenin's death, Scherbakov declared:

"Hitler's plans are based on splitting the democratic countries, but they have failed. Confidence and unity among the countries of the anti-Hitlerite coalitions have increased."

The statement was warmly received by American and British diplomats here and accepted as an official answer to any skeptics who may have asked if Russia and the Allies were drifting apart.

BOSTONIAN IN SOUTH SEAS—Lieut. Charles B. Faunce, Jr., of Boston, skipper of a LCI (landing craft infantry), looks forward as his vessel travels toward Saidor, New Guinea, where American troops staged invasion on Jan. 4.

Landing

Military observers see the entire picture in the battle of Italy changed by the new landing. The next 24 hours will probably make the Germans decide whether they want to stay in the pocket and fight it out, or withdraw northward. Apparently they had no great force to place to oppose the landings.

Landing with moon, wind and light conditions just right, the troops had several hours of night in which to get into good positions ashore.

ALLIES SHOW SPEED

The invasion was called "hazardous" and Allied officers indicated the stiffest resistance could be expected as soon as the Germans recovered from their surprise.

As soon as the first troops swept ashore the whole invasion machinery began moving at top speed. Reinforcements waded to the shore and the task started of getting guns, ammunition and supplies to the beach.

The landing operations are under the direction of Gen. Alexander, Allied ground force commander.

The landing was co-ordinated with strong attacks by American, British and French troops of the Fifth Army against Nazi positions in the Liri valley, which runs inland from the west coast.

The amphibious assault came after a series of naval bombardments of the Tyrrhenian coast. On Tuesday and Wednesday, Allied cruisers and destroyers pounded Terracina, Nazi strongpoint 25 miles above British-held Minturno.

OFFICIAL COMMUNIQUE

The official communique on the new invasion said:

"British and American troops of Gen. Clark's Fifth Army landed early this morning on the west coast of Italy deep in the rear of the present enemy front line positions.

"Naval and air forces are supporting the ground troops.

"The landing was co-ordinated with strong attacks by other units of the Fifth Army, including British, French and American, in the Liri valley.

"The amphibious attack began before dawn with Allied troops of the Fifth Army going ashore from landing craft along a beachfront extending several miles from north to south.

"British Commandos and American Rangers are participating in this assault.

"Operations in Italy are under the direction of Gen. Alexander, commander of the Allied Central Mediterranean force, formerly the 15th Army Group."

Meanwhile French forces on the Fifth Army front in the Mount Croce area made a limited advance to the west and captured two more hills.

American troops in the center of the line forced a crossing of the Rapido river near Sanangelo, south of Cassino. The river is 125 feet wide and boats and field bridges had to be used.

German resistance to this crossing was strong. The enemy, supported by tanks, concentrated "withering fire" from high points.

After crossing the stream the Americans encountered minefields.

Artillery fire was heavy on both sides in the Cassino sector.

The British in the lower Carigliano area of the Fifth Army front scored short advances, wiped out pockets of resistance, consolidated positions and captured the village of Trimonsuli, two miles west of Minturno.

REPULSE NAZI THRUSTS

Since the British began attacking in this region they have taken 450 prisoners, headquarters announced.

The Germans tried to form for a counterattack near Minturno, but were scattered by Allied artillery fire and withdrew to the north. Other Nazi forces staged a number of counterassaults in the neighborhood of Castle Forte, but were repulsed.

Farther north, Fifth Army troops captured Vandra, a mile and a half west of Mount Maggiore.

Frequent patrol clashes marked action on the Eighth Army front. Two enemy patrols were ambushed in the mountains. Heavy casualties were inflicted and a number of prisoners were taken.

Allied artillery shelled an enemy movement in the Orsogna area.

The weather was cold and fair and favorable for fighting.

AMPHIBIOUS COUP CATCHES FOE UNAWARE

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK

WITH FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, Jan. 22 (AP)—American and British amphibious forces lunged ashore on the west coast of Italy before daybreak today and planted a beachhead wedge between the German armies to the south and their bases in the north.

The amphibious assault has been in preparation for weeks. For days the waters off the Italian coast along the Fifth Army front have been black with huge concentrations of ships which gave the bay a busier appearance even than New York harbor in peace times.

It seemed the Germans were unaware of these preparations. As far as is known here no attempt was made by Nazi planes, submarines or mosquito boats to attack the shipping at anchor waiting for the night when it would carry the assault to the enemy.

Ten German divisions have been identified on the Fifth and Eighth Army fronts in recent weeks, with at least three more in the rear. The greater number of these forces presumably had been defending the roads to Rome on the Fifth Army side of the peninsula where the fighting has been heaviest.

BERN Switzerland, Jan. 22 (AP)—The Hungarian radio, quoting a report from Sofia, said today that henceforth only one-dish meals would be served in restaurants of the Bulgarian capital.

More Forces For MacArthur

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (INS)—The Army and Navy Journal asserted today that Gen. MacArthur soon may be provided greater strength than has been possible to date for a campaign that would be "a longer step toward Tokyo."

"Admiral Halsey has spoken with satisfaction of his association with the general and there is promise as a result of the conferences of the Washington authorities with the naval commander and Lieut.-Gen. Kenney that a new campaign is in contemplation.

"This Gen. MacArthur will lead."

sea st., Everett, the old General Seafoods trucker, and Corp. Edmund Garbick of 50 Southside ave., West Lynn, who played tackle for Bill Joyce's Lynn Classical in '39. The damp, winds out there bit you like a female fox with pups.

Or you poke into the time-tarnished brick barracks where the men sleep in double-deck bunks and you bawl: "Are there any Greater Boston men here?" Perhaps a few startled heads pop up with an eager "Yeh . . ." and a suspicious "Why?" For in barracks life, the soldier learns to volunteer for nothing.

And that's where I met Pvt. Charley L. Sweeney of 3 Shield st., Woburn, who used to truck for the C. & F. Gravel Co. And Pvt. Francis G. Stanley of 24 Sever st., Charlestown, who is cousin to Quincy's Judge Mulhall. And Pfc. Wilfred C. Hammond of 389 Glenwood ave., Pawtucket, who worked for Union Wadding Co. And Sergt. Harold F. Smith of 555 Union ave., Framingham, who did all round work for the Union Laundry. In civil life, of which they speak with a vague time sense as though of a world as remote as the planet Mars, most of these men were truck drivers, which is first cousin to driving these big, hardshell land crabs. They are not, as a rule, large men, for the inboard space in the tank allows for no extra lard. If you're big, they'll sweat you down.

Silver Star Winner

A proportion of these youths already know the sound of things that whistle past like the hiss of sharp scythes, or the mushroom burst of enemy shells or the chattering of machine guns pointed the "wrong way." Take Sergt. Frank A. D'Andria of 48 Williams st., Medford—the Germans couldn't!—who wears the ribbon of the Silver Star for gallantry. And 1st Lieut. Clifton W. Rowe of 148 High st., also Medford, whose platoon of tanks fought with the American Rangers (Commandos) in Sicily, and won official commendation for gallantry.

D'Andria, whose story came out like an ulcerated tooth, with hesitant "aws" and "ers," asked if I would add a personal postscript to Miss Kay Annine, who's his "her." To get his star, he pulled his crew out of a capsized tank, took command of another and escorted a partly disabled neighbor to safety. It sounds cold as he tells it, like the Afrika Korps was just throwing snowballs.

Lieut. Rowe (Arlington High '34, Northwestern U. '38) led his tankers up a volcanic Sicilian cliff to the town at the top and took it at gun point. As he talked, he was chewing gum at 120 CPM (Chaws-per-minute.) Gum is what the Army sees the boys have plenty of. It reduces nerve pressure. A cud of gum, parked between times in the roof of a helmet is good for a week of steady jaw oscillations.

Or, as I say, you barge into one of the low-built mess shacks, which look something like the single-storied horse barns at Suffolk Downs, and bellow for Bostonians, above the rattle of mess tins, and the concerted gulping of a hundred Adam's apples. And there I found Pvt. Antonio Qaurine of 39 Everett st., East Boston, who made tobacco casings for Ellison-Ficher's. And Dennis F. Aleboard of 36 Harvard st., Dorchester, who liked to read hard books like "David Copperfield," in Miss Quinn's Codman Square library. (He says "hello" to Rita McCarron!) And Staff Sergt. Jim B. Nickson of 28 Reynolds st., New Bedford, whose prewar hobby was hamburgers in Charley's Lunch Cart. And Pvt. Henry Koocher of 77 Kirkland st., Cambridge, a bugler, whose dad is with the Winsor Stove Co. And Pvt. John Carce of 214 Chelsea st., East Boston (doing a stretch of K. P.), whose pal was Sal Bartolo, the N. E. featherweight fighter.

Food, Mail Topics

From an analysis of my copybook notes, I find that the topics the soldiers talk about in the order of volume and importance are (1) food, (2) mail, (3) girls (4) availability of beer. Oddly enough, except when stimulated by a fresh-arrived homebody like your emissary, they don't talk much about home—a sort of defense complex against nostalgia (all right then—home sickness). Or, when they do, it is always in the vein of comparison—as, "Aw, my girl at home could give that wren in the P-X a handicap of a mustache and two cauliflower ears and still win in a breeze."

Or—to resume—you just mooch around the parade level after the bugle blows "recall" and get 'em where they cluster, ducking the wisecracks of the outland G. I's. ("If it's an invite to a party, I'm from Boston," says one dungaree with a steel flower pot on his head. His accent is pure Jaw-Jaw cracker.)

And there is where I found Corp. Bill A. Fisher of 404 Charles st., Malden, the ex-Elevated operator. And Pfc. Patrick J. Hickey of 75 Green st., Charlestown, who has two Biblical named brothers, Luke and John, in the Army, and two more, Walter and Thomas, in the Navy.

And Pvt. Walter A. McGrail of 49 Twelfth st., Lowell, an old General Electric molder. And Pfc. Hubert L. Parquette of 95 Norwood ave., Newtonville, who has become a rugged middleweight boxer since joining the Army. And Pfc. Milton J. Zabek (Howdy, Mary Obrzut!) of 7 Patch st., West Warren (near Ware).

Also Pvt. Clifford Russell of 24 Cedar st., New Bedford, an extrucker for Andrews and Pierce, and now assistant operator of a tank, with a battle star on his ribbon.

Their Pin-Up Girls

Among the items that indicate the seasoned soldier is the prompt way he settles himself in new quarters. He pins up his female art work. He may have a miniature rug and a pair of wooden-soled mules, or a makeshift spittoon. Or a gilt bordered, Sicilian mirror, gathered from God knows where, which he transported here. And noticeably, too, the more seasoned he is the fewer battlefield souvenirs he has—for this group is educated against the enemy's booby traps.

I've seldom visited a headquarters company that I didn't find a Boston soldier—probably because Boston is a prolific business school center and the H. Q. is starved for any man who can run a chatter box.

And so I found Sergt. Saul Levine of 18 Spring st., Boston's West End (near the Massachusetts General). And Sergt. John W. Hamlin of 126 Green st., Lynn, whose wife was Hazel M. Souey, and whose children are Dorothy (4) and Sandra (3). Their pictures are on his desk.

There's less chance to "goldbrick" in this man's army today. And I'll tell you why. Oversea army policy is to work 'em so hard that they don't have a chance to think of their morale. Civilians in the back-home areas, please copy.

(Read Monday what Lake says of tanks in this war compared to those in 1917-18.)

Tanks of Today And '18 Compared By Lake Monday

Austen Lake, Boston American war correspondent with the Army in England, tells of the changes Army life has wrought in Greater Boston and New England boys in Monday's installment of his series on Berlin-bound fighting men.

From a tank corps camp, Lake compares today's powerful mechanical monsters with the puny, "almost futile" tanks he knew in World War I.

Throughout his interesting article, Lake sprinkles the names of boys from Saugus, Fitchburg, Amesbury, Franklin, Taunton, South Boston, Peabody, Arlington, Dorchester, Roxbury, Newport, R. I., Brockton, Hyannis, Millis, Worcester, Malden and Allston. Read Monday's Boston American and keep posted on the doings of your loved ones overseas.

NEW HOWARD, GLOBE REVUES

Tantalizing cuties and droll comics hold the Old Howard spotlight currently, with the accent on decorative Phyllis Ayres and Roxanne and the antic Charles Robinson and Pat Daly.

There are 56 lesser burlesque personalities in the new show, which bowed in a minute after last midnight. Outstanding in this supporting cast is dimpled Judy Crawford, straight-man Lester Mack, singer Ben Hamilton and vaudevillians Colvin Lovett, Frank's Marionettes, Charles Bristol, and Rhodes and Gordon.

"Mr. V." and "Sing For Your Supper" are the film attractions.

Evelyn Taylor, an eye-popping as well as eye-easing performer, is the star of the new Globe stage revue, opening tomorrow at midnight.

Advance information on the show is to the effect that it is a bountiful, buoyant and handsome production. Sammy Smith and Al Rio divide comedy honors, with Mervin Harmon assisting as straight-man.

Vaudeville is well represented by Raye and Rita, Billy Bird Conny Ryan, the Virginia Melford Trio and Jack and Adele.

For film fare there will be "Priorities On Parade," with Jerry Colonna, Ann Miller and Vera Vague, and "Tombstone," featuring Richard Dix, Frances Gifford and Kent Taylor, as well as the latest newsreels.

Girls Learn Child Care

By PAULINE WARREN

IN THE peace and seclusion of pleasant rolling acres in Wellesley Hills a modest experiment is reaping remarkable results for the mute desolate army of little children growing up while mothers work in war plants. The Convalescent Home of the Children's Hospital on Forest Street has inaugurated a nursery-maids' course which is condensed into one year and the graduates are prized as rare jewels by child centers as well as war workers.

It has taken years for the Home to perfect its course. A trained nursery maid, according to its standards, must not only be well trained in the physical care of children, but she must also be well versed in child psychology and nutrition, as well as able to devise constructive play for children, handle behaviour problems and develop desirable attitudes and habits in the very young.

The course, as it is now accelerated, is a paradise for any girl between 18 and 30 who is fond of children. She is given practical experience in the tender treatment of children from 2 to 12 and is also taught how to care for infants and young convalescents with skill and intelligent understanding.

The uniforms—pink and white with a veiled bonnet—are glamorous and the requirements are not stiff: 2 years of high school and good health.

While training, the students are given board, room, uniforms, tuition, books and the surroundings are rural and charming.

When a student graduates she finds her future secure as the demand for her services is so great she has her pick of jobs at fancy salaries.

But most of the students claim their greatest reward is seeing children improve under their guidance.

$300 Is Not Enough

THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES has voted $300 mustering-out-pay for the honorably discharged veterans of World War II.

This is a step forward in the right direction.

But it is a belated step, a reluctant step, a niggardly step.

It recognizes the need of government assistance to service men to ease the headaches and heartaches of their transition to civil life.

But it fails completely to provide that assistance in satisfactory amount or measure.

The defenders of our country will not relish or be content with this sop grudgingly tossed at them by an administration which has found billions for foreign nationals all over the globe.

The defenders of our country deserve and have every right to expect a FULL YEAR'S SALARY or its equivalent.

The paltry $300 proposal embodies too much of the parsimonious and self righteous reasoning of Representative Dewey Short (short on logic and short on liberality) of Missouri, who recently declared:

"No Congress in all our history has been so kind, considerate and generous with the men of our armed services as has the present Congress of the United States . . . Not only do the veterans have burial and funeral expenses, but they have insurance up to $10,000 at the lowest and cheapest rates in all the world."

It embodies too little of the sounder, more American idealism of Representative William Lemke of North Dakota, who has said:

"A nation that does not protect its protectors is unworthy of protection. A nation that does not appreciate patriotism cannot long endure.

"Patriotism is a feeling that you are somebody. It is the feeling that you belong to a nation that is not only powerful, but that is interested in your welfare.

"The contract between the soldier and his nation is reciprocal. He tacitly agrees to protect the nation even unto death, and the nation tacitly agrees to protect him on his return to civil life.

"This is the compact between the nation and the soldier. Without this feeling of security and reciprocity there can be no true patriotism on the part of the soldier."

THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS, which brought the plight of America's unwanted battalion to the attention of the sympathetic nation, find satisfaction in the knowledge that after two years of delay and procrastination the House of Representatives has finally consented to help sick, wounded and disabled service men—a little.

But these newspapers cannot and will not applaud the brush-off of the country's defenders with a sop grudgingly cast at men who offered America everything they had, even their lives.

However, the $500 mustering-out pay bill already passed by the Senate can still become the law of the land. It is not good but it is better than the House bill.

The conferees from the two branches of Congress can approve it.

The House can accept it. And the President can sign it—if he can take time from signing millions to alien parasites.

Moreover as a thoughtful Representative has said, neither the President nor the Congress ever raised the question of how many billions it would cost in guns, in planes and in battleships for the MATERIAL SIDE of our national defense.

In approaching the HUMAN SIDE of that national defense—the welfare of our soldiers, sailors, marines, and aviators—they should not begin figuring how little they can get away with.

Demobilizaton Essentials

ONE OF THE UNEXPECTED subjects that President Roosevelt touched on in his message to Congress of Jan. 13 was demobilization.

The President said that "demobilization adjustments will be possible and necessary while we are still fighting a major war."

He further told us that already $12,000,000,000 in contracts had been terminated and that 1,000,000 men and women had been discharged from the armed forces.

President Roosevelt might have broadened the term "demobilization"— to include—

The demobilization of income-destroying taxes—

The demobilization of a crushing public debt—

The demobilization of the super-constitutional political bureaucratic set-ups in Washington—

The demobilization of vast Executive powers that have been loaned away by Congress—

The demobilization of all the Communists, state Socialists and Internationalists who would sell our birthright as an independent sovereignty for a mess of wars that do not concern us—

The demobilization of the secret juntas in Washington who are bent on destroying our private enterprise system and substituting a system modelled on the very totalitarian governments that we are trying to destroy—

And, finally, the demobilization of at least 80 per cent of the New Deal and the fourth-term politicians that are more intent on holding their jobs indefinitely than they are on rebuilding the U. S. A. on its traditional lines.

They are some of the things the President might have mentioned in his demobilization plans. But he didn't.

Love well who will,
Love wise who can
But love, be loved.
—JOAQUIN MILLER.

IT was Thackeray who said: "It is best to love wisely, no doubt; but to love foolishly is better than not to be able to love at all" . . . How about a Liberty ship named after Eddie Grant, the only major league baseball player killed in action in World War I? I know I have asked the question before but we still haven't the ship. Not long ago I received a letter from a member of this great and heroic fellow's family. There was a line in this letter I will never forget. "As Eddie was off to join his regiment he stopped at the corner to wave good-bye. That was the last we saw of him."

PLEASE NOTE: Now the New York City Health Department says kissing is dangerous and warns against it. You can catch cold and a lot of other things from kissing, says the N. Y. C. H. D. Very depressing. Not much can be done about warning people against kissing. When most persons are in the mood they are inclined to say: "Oh, death, where is thy sting!"

ALMOST CONFIDENTIAL: Was much interested in Adm. Halsey's recent observation: "The Japs are more willing recently to surrender. They are not quite so ready to die for their great son of whatever he is" . . . The play I would like to see again is that powerful drama of domesticity titled "Craig's Wife." Remember it?

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS: Q—Did you ever see a burlesque show at Miners on the Bowery, New York City? A—No, sir. But I saw burlesque shows at the Star Theater, facetiously referred to as "The Jay st. Opera House" and at Watson's Cosy Corner in Brooklyn. Q—Let's get it settled; was the "Battling" in Battling Nelson's name a nickname or not? A—It was not a nickname but a family name. Should be spelled with one "t," that is Batling. Q—How do you justify calling a person who buys in the black market a "rat and a traitor"? A—Restrictive legislation on certain commodities was passed to help the war effort. Violators of this legislation hinder the war effort and give aid and comfort to the enemy and are therefore traitors. As to the rat part, maybe I was a little hasty. I should apologize to the rats. After all, a rat is just trying to get a little food for himself and family and as far as I know is loyal to his friends. Let's make it just traitor.

TAILORS: In the early nineteen twenties a well-dressed man was much better dressed than a well-dressed woman. The reason was simple: the men tailors were better than the dressmakers. They fitted clothes better and knew more about what is called "striking simplicity." And so what? Why, the women, sizing up the situation, be an asking male tailors to make clothes for them. Now clothes made by men tailors are the most popular with women. The firm that sells the most clothes at the highest prices to film stars, career women and socialites was founded by a man tailor and has a staff of men tailors. A man can still get a suit made in this place, but he has to push his way through a mob of women to get service. A tailor told me all this, and is willing to bet he can prove he is right.

"All I know is, we told him to trim the hedge!"

ANOTHER SHORTAGE: Now a shortage of butchers has developed, due to so many men in the trade having been drafted. The meat industry has been trying to substitute women butchers but is not having much luck. Women shoppers say they do not like to deal with women butchers. Furthermore, few women are enthusiastic about being butchers. They say they are not strong enough and besides consider such tasks as dressing a chicken "too messy." Have you ever noticed that nearly every housewife has "a favorite butcher?" I know a woman who, when gasoline was plentiful, drove 20 miles to deal with her favorite butcher. An experienced butcher once told me that 75 per cent of butchers didn't know their trade and that they knew absolutely nothing about judging the quality of meat. That shows you what kind of families there are in New York city. That is, in the New York neighborhood sections, of which the rest of the country hears all too little.

My Day

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Friday—Yesterday afternoon I went on a trip which covered many areas, in the outskirts of town and right in the city. It was planned to show me how new buildings for white occupation were encroaching on areas which had once been open for Negro housing, and how even in areas which seemed far enough away from the present white building operations, there was objection to land being developed for Negro housing units.

The few new buildings to go up on Congress Heights will not solve much of the housing problem. The land that the zoning commission now has under consideration is not actually on Bradbury Heights, but down below it.

I DO NOT THINK THAT A job can be done by a complete city planning program, which would perhaps increase the number of Negro people housed in existing Negro areas, by changing the type of buildings. This, however, would not be sufficient to meet the whole problem, and I cannot see how this problem is going to be solved unless more areas, are given over to the building of Negro housing.

The claim is, of course, that Negro housing will lower the value of the adjacent real estate. But where there is new and modern housing, the community, whether it is white or colored, may not show any marked differences in value. Certainly where now there are little islands of very old houses, surrounded by new and modern white developments, the old houses are an eyesore.

That need not be the case with modern buildings and, therefore, the deterioration in values in the neighborhood we hope would not occur. However, whatever happens, this is a democracy. These are our citizens, and their right to live decently at the same costs and under similar conditions as other citizens I think must be accepted by all.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 22—Amazing L. A. R. Wylie is still going strong as a movie writer. Twenty-five or more years ago, when I was buying scripts at Essanay, she was one of our favorite contributors and many a check we sent her.

I heard today that Miss Wylie (and that reminds me, when I first wrote her I addressed her as "Mister") has just sold Columbia an original called "Storm in April."

Claudette Colbert

Sixty-five pages of typewritten copy were submitted to Columbia by Miss Wylie, for which she was paid a sum in five figures. 'Tis whispered that the story is intended for Jean Arthur and it is described as a romantic comedy.

MOVIES ARE like songs; you never know when one is going to be an unexpected hit. Paramount thought they had a funny little picture in "No Time for Love," but they didn't realize this comedy with Claudette Colbert and Fred MacMurray would be a minor riot at the box office—going into three and four-week runs everywhere. So right away Claudette and Fred are being reunited in another comedy, "Practically Yours," with Mitch Leisen (who megaphoned "No Time for Love") again at the controls. It's about a soldier who murmurs a girl's name just as he is about to die—only he doesn't die—and when he lives to be a hero he has to produce his "girl" in a hurry.

THERE WAS general sadness on the Paramount lot yesterday when the little bear, born en route to Hollywood, died after making such a valiant effort to live. Bob Hope, Dorothy Lamour and Bing Crosby had named the little fellow "Paramount." His twin died at birth, but Paramount survived long enough to have 15 cameramen snap his picture—more than met Frank Sinatra when he arrived in Hollywood. Had he lived, Paramount would have been the most famous bear in the world for he was to have had a part in "Road to Utopia," with Bob, Dorothy and Bing.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: Robert Cummings, accompanied by blonde and attractive Mary Constant, dropped by my house the other evening. They were on their way to have dinner with Laura La Plante (Mrs. Irving Asher) across the street. Bob said he wanted me to meet his girl friend. She is the widow of the war hero, Max Constant, and it's easy to see they are head over heels in love.

WHEN JOSE ITURBI went to see himself in "Thousands Cheer" his only comment was: "I could not understand my own English." Be that as it may, the M-G-M bosses understand it well enough to realize Jose was a one-man riot with the fans both at the piano and as a new screen personality. The result is a big acting role has been written for him in "Dear Barbara" with Margaret O'Brien. Jose will play a symphony orchestra conductor, but he will "emote" as well as wave a baton in the Joe Pasternak-Henry Koster movie.

Please let us hear, Nils; Franchot Tone, on a bond tour, was called to Buffalo because of the critical illness of his father; hear it whispered that Belita, the little skater, is talking contract with M-G-M; Edgar Bergen and Adelaide Norris, Paramount player, a Beverly Tropics duo.

Star Shine By Sidney Skolsky

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 22—You and I will wander about the various sets, looking the scenes over and chatting with the various players. Veronica Lake has returned to work in "Bring On the Girls," and Veronica is not a bad gal to bring on.

Veronica Lake

She is good company on the set, and her leading man in this picture is Sonny Tufts. It must be difficult to be coy and keep turning on the charm when the camera, but Tufts is a good performer and is able to do it.

Bing Crosby and Bob Hope are always pleasant company, and on the set of "The Road to Utopia," I asked Bing if he ever met Frank Sinatra. He said, "Yes," and told me about the meeting. It took place in the corridor of the broadcasting studio

Bing was on his way to a broadcast and Frankie was on his way to a rehearsal. They approached each other in the corridor. They passed each other when both halted and turned around. Sinatra said, "Hello, Bing." Crosby said, "Hello, Frankie." They both spoke as if they had known each other and went on their respective way.

Crosby said it is true that a deal is trying to be worked out so that Sinatra will appear on the Crosby program and Crosby will appear on the Sinatra show. Of course, they will kid each other and probably conclude by singing either "People Will Say We're in Love" or "Friendship" with special lyrics.

KATHARINE HEPBURN walking toward the makeup department at Metro without any makeup on her face. Hepburn is going there to be made up as Jade for her role in "Dragon's Seed."

On the set of "Dragon's Seed," Walter Huston is in his Chinese garb, but despite this I ask Huston, as I always do when I meet him, to sing the "September" song for me. This is the song that Huston sang in the stage production of "Knickerbocker Holiday," and Charles Coburn does it in the screen version of that play. The song, I believe, has a good chance of becoming a big hit.

ON THE SET of "The Open Road" there is a young actress, Peggy O'Neill, playing her first role in a picture. Miss O'Neill is good looking and red-haired, and I recall how she used to sit at the fountain at Schwab's and talk about her hopes of getting a job in the movies.

Then her name was Barbara O'Neill, and she would sit, having a coke and looking through the pages of the various fan magazines. An agent, Leo Lance, who spoke to her there told her he would get her in pictures, and it was not the usual Hollywood line. He got her in pictures.

Boston After Dark

THAT STAUNCH FRIEND and sometimes severest critic of the greats of Hollywood, Louella O. Parsons, will be gratified at the public response in Boston and suburbs to the happy urge which made her write a book . . . "The Gay Illiterate" is the title of the Parsons tome . . . In it, Louella takes her hair down—well, partly down . . . The result inevitably is an absorbing piece of biography . . . Miss Parsons has flashbacked racily over the entire modern period of the movies.

NO ONE knows Hollywood or its inhabitants more intimately, and not even the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce can lay more rightful claim to admiration of both the town and its denizens . . . And Louella's admiration for Hollywood is infectious . . . The circulating libraries, best barometers to the demand for a book, report that Louella's "The Gay Illiterate" is sharing top sales with Gene Fowler's biography of John Barrymore, "Good Night, Sweet Prince" . . . It is a coincidence that both authors are Hearst writers . . . (Gene, come to think of it, was also a managing editor—briefly—of the New York American.)

THE FAMILY OF McCREA will be in town this week . . . The paterfamilias is Joel, the stalwart movie hero . . . Mrs. McCrea is Frances Dee, the actress . . . Their two youngsters are with them . . . Mr. McCrea is taking it liesurely while in Boston . . . It is Miss Dee who is here on the official business of the Fourth (or Invasion Loan) drive . . . Joel came along for the trip, and to be with his wife and kids . . . The War Activity Committee of the Motion Picture Industry, of which Sam Pinanski is New England chairman, is responsible for the presence in town of Miss Dee . . . Mr. Pinanski is jubilant over the results scored toward the success of the Fourth War Bond Loan by Lieut. Eddie Albert, Jack Dempsey and Alan Marshall, the first (and all-male) batch of "names" assigned to Boston . . . Albert and Dempsey were here for one week only, but Marshall will remain for a second week and will share chores with Miss Dee . . . There's a scant possibility that Hedy Lamarr will come to Boston before the drive ends in mid-February . . . Nothing definite—except that Hedy has been asked to make Boston her headquarters for a few days at least, and that the war activity committee is hopeful that it can be arranged.

FORMER GOVERNOR STASSEN of Minnesota is at the front, acting as aide to Adm. Halsey and bearing the rank of lieutenant-commander in the Navy . . . The Stassen name lately has been getting little attention as a G. O. P. presidential possibility, although before Pearl Harbor the Minnesota liberal was conceded a standing in his party that was just a cut below Bricker, Dewey and Willkie . . . This column has reason to believe that a Stassen boom is in the making . . . In Boston over the week-end has been the gentleman who was Gov. Stassen's campaign manager in his fight for the governorship . . . He has been consorting with high-placed Republicans, and if we weren't tied by one of those "off the record" pledges we could expand a bit, and give some names . . . But we can say that the Bay State visit of the Stassen manager will establish whether any delegates to the G. O. P. convention are ready to vote for the mid-Western leader.

BOSTONIANS WHO REMEMBER the series of musical comedies which the late George M. Cohan opened in Boston before New York will remember Charlie King, the handsome young singing hero of "Little Nelly Kelly" . . . Charlie had many Boston friends and when he made his big hit in "Hit the Deck," and in the first "Broadway Melody" in the movies, there was a King cheering section right here in Charlie's "second home" . . . Well, Charles King died of pneumonia in Scotland last week . . . He contracted a cold on the trip across as one of a group of entertainers en route to the various fronts . . . But a tragic angle to the popular singer's death is that his son, Charles King, Jr., has not yet learned of his father's death . . . The younger King is "somewhere in the Pacific" in the Navy . . . Ross Angier, traffic manager for American Airlines, is staying in Boston in spite of the embarrassing fact this column shunted him over to New York the other day, for a promotion. (It'll come later).

JVA Thanked For Donations

Playing cards, funny books, puzzles and games are always needed by the Citizens Committee for the Army and Navy, Inc., affiliate of the USO here, for distribution to servicemen.

Angie LaFerrara

This was revealed by Mrs. Dorothy D. Beggs, a director of that organization, in a letter to the Junior Victory Army, which acknowledged with thanks the contributions of patriotic boys and girls.

The letter specifically mentioned the recent donation of 50 decks of "wonerful playing cards" from Angie LaFerrara and a group of girls belonging to the "Uncle Sam" Corps which she commands.

Angie, who lives at 136 Prince st., Boston, has led her corps in all campaigns for salvage materials and other articles.

This campaign was successfully carried on some months ago with one unit, the "Nipmuc" Corps of Dudley, made up entirely of girls and directed by Leopold LaChance, delivering a truck load of cards, funny books, magazines and games to the committee's headquarters at 13 Commonwealth ave., Boston.

To join the JVA, send your name and address to Junior Victory Army headquarters, P. O. Box 228, Boston, Mass. If, in addition to enlistment, you want the JVA insignia pin and membership card, enclose a 10-cent coin, well wrapped in your letter.

Read the next JVA story in Sunday's Advertiser.

SOMERVILLE AND LOWELL FLIERS KILLED

Two Massachusetts men — one from Somerville, the other from Lowell—were killed in a bomber crash near San Diego, Cal., the 11th Naval District announced today.

J. W. Knight

Jerome W. Knight, Jr., of Pearl st., Somerville, and Ensign Ralph C. Runels of Belmont st., Lowell, were among 13 fliers who met instant death Thursday when their B-24 Liberator nosed over and burst into flames.

Knight, 19, was the son of Mr. a. 1 Mrs. Jerome W. Knight and enlisted in the Navy 15 months ago, soon after his graduation from Somerville High School.

He was a student at the naval radio and gunnery school in Jacksonville, Fla., and was undergoing operational flight training on the West Coast when he lost his life.

Besides his parents, he leaves a brother, Kenneth, and two sisters, Lorraine and Elizabeth.

Ensign Runels, 23, son of Ralph E. Runels, attended Lowell high school and then went to Kimball Union Academy, Meredith, N. H., where he was a member of the ski team. At the University of Maine, he was on the track team, and left two years ago to enlist in the Naval Air Corps. He was assigned to Chapel Hill, N. C., Corpus Christi, Tex., and Hollywood, Fla., before being sent to San Diego.

Besides Mr. and Mrs. Runels, he is survived by a brother, who is an Army lieutenant, and three sisters. One, Shirley, is doing war work in England, and another, Natalie, works in a Cambridge war industry.

He's 5 and Lost Thousand Miles From N. Y. Home

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 22 (AP)—Charley Anderson, 5 years old and a thousand miles from home, can't find his mom and his daddy is "on a boat."

The handsome, dark-eyed youngster, now living in the telephone operators' quarters in criminal court building, was found wandering near the French Quarter last night.

He said he came with his "mom on a train" and he was almost sure he came from New York. A dark gray overcoat he wore over a red, yellow and blue jersey polo shirt and blue overalls, bore a New York label.

Police asked "What's your mother's name?"

"Myrtle, but we call her Mom."

"Where's your daddy?"

"On a boat."

Today Charley grinned, a bit snaggle-toothed, and said wistfully "Maybe Mom will come and take me home, we got cakes in the window there."

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Jan. 22 (AP)—Rushing into probate court office in city hall, Pasquale Lavorgna, 63, of New Haven, whipped out a revolver and pumped three bullets into Clifford B. Sturgess, assistant clerk of court, police said. Sturgess' condition is serious.

Dempsey Visits Heroes In the Chelsea Hospital

By JACK CONWAY

COMMANDER JACK DEMPSEY made a surprise visit to the Naval Hospital in Chelsea following a tour of Greater Boston war plants. The former heavyweight champion was accompanied by Lieut. Eddie Albert, Allan Marshall, Chief Petty Officer John Derr, Eddie Kasper, Harry Goldberg and this writer.

Dempsey was warmly greeted as he went from ward to ward shaking hands with service men and offering them words of encouragement... I found that the sailors and Marines were eager to get Dempsey's autograph... Many of them had seen him referee or give personal appearances in their home towns, and he was able to discuss people whom they knew.

Jack Dempsey

This is one of Dempsey's great assets when talking to groups of service men . . . He has traveled so extensively and met so many people he is usually able to give them a touch of their home town atmosphere.

The Chelsea Naval Hospital offers the best possible care for the service men . . . The patients have the services of a fine staff of doctors, efficient nurses, Red Cross workers, and other excellent hospital facilities.

There was one wounded sailor who asked Dempsey to compare hands with him.

"There are some fellows here,.. said the sailor, "who think I have bigger hands than you."

Dempsey placed his hands against those of the sailor.

"Your hands are wider than mine but not quite as long," declared the former champion.

"I wear a size 11½ glove," declared the sailor.

"My size is 11," asserted Dempsey.

Dempsey showed deep interest in the physical condition of each boy with whom he talked . . . He felt they were his own Navy kids.

A 21-year-old sailor asked Dempsey a number of questions about boxing which he readily answered . . . He then gave the boy his autograph.

"This boy, only 21, is one of the oldest of our patients," said a nurse.

The kids have been doing their share of the fighting in the Southwest Pacific.

Talks About Max Baer

"MAX BAER should have been one of the greatest of the heavyweight champions," Dempsey told me . . . "He could punch and also take a sock . . . Once Max reached the top he did not give proper attention to his training and that is why he lost to Jimmy Braddock and to Joe Louis . . . The boxing game places such a severe strain on one that it is necessary to keep in the best of condition to remain at the top."

Dempsey declared he always felt that Ernie Schaaf died as a result of punishment received in his Chicago bout with Baer rather than from Primo Carnera's blows.

"I was in a hospital near the New York Garden when Schaaf was brought into the place," said Dempsey . . . "Outside the crowd was hollering fake . . . This opinion was also shared by some of the boxing leaders . . . A few days later Schaaf died . . . It was a sorrowful state of affairs when it took the death of a young boxer to convince certain groups the bout was fought on its merits."

Leaves for New York

DEMPSEY AND Chief Petty Officer John Derr left for New York on the midnight . . . During the three days that the former champion toured Greater Boston war plants he helped in the sale of thousands of dollars worth of bonds.

This writer accompanied Dempsey, Lieut. Albert and Allan Marshall on their tour . . . It convinced me that the people working in war plants are going to do their part to make the fourth war bond drive a success . . . They are not going to let the kids on the battle fronts down . . . They are going to use their money to reduce the number of American casualties.

Sox Pitcher Classed 1-A

WATERBURY, Ct., Jan. 22 (AP)—George (Pinky) Woods, Boston Red Sox pitcher, said today that he received notice to report for induction Monday morning at Rutland, Vt., where he lives, "and I hope to be on time."

Woods, visiting his home town here for a speaking engagement, was classified 4-F last year after he had a toe on his pitching foot amputated following an accident suffered in a Memphis Southern Ass'n baseball game in 1942.

He was reclassified 1-A a month ago, he said, but didn't expect an Army call for a couple of months. He tried to enlist in the Navy but was rejected because of the loss of his toe.

"I expect I'll be in the Army in three weeks," he declared, "and I believe I'll have the company of several of my Boston Red Sox teammates the way they're calling them up. I didn't expect baseball to operate last season, but it did, and it may this year, but the outlook doesn't look bright, with the demand for more fellows in the armed services."

Pinky would like another year with the Red Sox, but isn't complaining. "Baseball," he said, "has been good to me so far, and if the war gets over before some high officials in the government expect it to end, I'll still be able to pitch. But I believe all my hurling will be for Uncle Sam shortly."

Woods is married and a father.

Ring Solons Hear Ritchie Charges

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 22 (AP)—The California State Athletic Commission convened today to hear charges by Willie Ritchie, former world lightweight champion and for several years chief boxing inspector for the commission's southern California division that gambling is making a mockery of the game here.

Ritchie told reporters recently that open gambling was flourishing in the Los Angeles area with conditions becoming progressively worse. Chairman Jules Covey answered immediately by saying the commission would hear Ritchie if he had concrete evidence to offer.

"The evidence is all in my files," Ritchie declared, "I'm tired of the filthy insults being heaped upon me because I'm trying to keep clean the game I love."

Fans Eager to Name Stengel's Successor

By HUCK FINNEGAN

Casey Stengel, God bless 'im, is out as manager of the Boston Braves sure as shootin'. When Joe Maney of Cambridge, Guido Rugo of Milton and Louis Perini of Wellesley bought a majority of the stock in the club from Max Meyer of Brooklyn, J. W. Powdrell of Danielson, Ct., and lesser lights, Stengel's number was up. For Meyer and Powdrell, particularly Meyer, were Casey's staunchest supporters, and Perini for one, anything else but.

How can you blame Perini, on the basis of Stengel's managerial record? Though one of the best-liked characters in the game, old Case was no ball of fire as a leader of men, as any of his ex-players will tell you ("but don't use my name.")

PAID NOT TO MANAGE

Casey was a coach at Brooklyn in '32 and '33 and took over the managership in '34. He finished sixth that season, fifth in '35, seventh in '36.

Remember what happened in '37? Why the Brooklyn stockholders paid Case his full salary NOT to manage the club, and he sat the season out watching Burleigh Grimes finish seventh.

Bob Quinn, returning to Boston in '36 after a term in Brooklyn, brought Stengel here in '38 to succeed Bill McKechnie. Though Case might have been handicapped by lack of players and the park, certainly his six-year record here is a poor one; to wit: fifth in '38, four sevenths in a row, sixth last year. NEVER ONCE IN THE FIRST DIVISION EITHER IN BROOKLYN OR IN BOSTON!

Reorganization of the Braves, especially since it put the club in Boston hands for the first time in 40 years, was greeted with a "Yippee" by the office fans.

"Now let's appoint a manager" they cried as they threw another log on the stove league fire.

"Dave Egan" said Jonn Ahern, but the Colonel was promptly disqualified because of his fondness for the nags.

"Lefty O'Doul's my nominee," said Pete McGrath, and Alan Coughlin held out for "Bucky Harris."

BUCKY HARRIS
He Could Take Job

LEFTY O'DOUL
Wants Big League Post

O'DOUL AND HARRIS

Two excellent choices. O'Doul has been a howling success at San Francisco and is eager to grab off a big league job. His reputation was made principally on developing hitters of the Joe DiMaggio stripe but we've heard Dom DiMag, Larry Woodall, Frank Shellenback and Ted Williams sing his praises on all-round managerial ability. He is a great personality, popular with players and press.

Harris is available. When he accepted the Buffalo post a few months back it was with the provision that he be released "any time he could better himself."

No action will be taken on the new manager until the major league meeting in New York on Feb. 8 is ended.

Of course it hasn't been announced that Stengel is through as manager. But it's a cinch that after nine straight years in the second division, six of them under Stengel, the new stockholders will holler for a NEW DEAL, and under such a set-up the manager is always the first to go. And when they start searching for his successor it might be well to keep O'Doul and Harris in mind.

Or have you anything better to offer, Boston fans?

Bob Quinn remains as president of the Braves, Maney is the new treasurer, and John Quinn is assistant treasurer and home secretary...You can bet Duffy Lewis will stay on as road secretary . . . Meyer hooked up with Stengel when the latter was at Brooklyn. They have been firm friends since . . . If Stengel's stock wasn't sold along with Meyer's et al., one thing is certain: He hasn't enough left to carry a vote . . . It is likely that Coach George Kelly, brought here by Stengel, will be dropped but Bob Coleman, rated highly by all baseball men, will be retained in some capacity if not actually named duration manager

Night Ball, Fens Home for Tribe?

By BILL CORUM

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—Sale of the Boston Braves to a syndicate of Boston contractors, composed of the Messrs. Louis Perini, Joseph Maney and Guido Rugo, came as no tremendous surprise in this quiet fireside corner. The deal has been on the fire since the World Series.

Whether it foreshadows or forestalls the eventual transfer of the Boston National League franchise to another city, possibly Oakland, Cal., only time will tell. But this much is sure—it is only the first of several important changes that impend in the major leagues.

And what is almost as sure as that, is this: The Braves, under their new ownership, will quit their ancient stomping ground at Braves Field, hard by the Charles, and move over into Fenway Park to keep the American League Red Sox company.

LIGHTS FOR FENWAY

Neither Boston park is equipped for night baseball now. But it is understood that Fenway will be as soon as possible after the war. Whereas, it would not be practicable for the new owners to install a lighting system at Braves Field, since their lease on it expires in the near future. The park is owned by the Gaffney estate.

The trio of new owners isn't likely to want to let those 14 possible night dates get away if it can be avoided. And one way to avoid it, provided landlord Tom Yawkey is going to install lights and is willing, would be to become tenants of the Sox.

Max C. Meyer, Brooklyn jeweler, who was head of the group that sold the Braves, refused last night to disclose the price.

However, he did say that it was big enough to be pleasing to him and his associates.

MEYER EYES DODGERS?

We asked Meyer if this terminated his own relationship with the national pastime and he replied: "By no means."

"I'm more interested in baseball now than before," he went on, "and expect to be back in it in the near future."

"Closer to home this time?" we suggested.

"Yes, much," he replied.

Since he emphasized the word much and since he lives in Brooklyn, we can't see how he could have been referring to any club except the dashing Dodgers. At any rate, we record our conversation with him on this point verbatim and pass it on to you readers for whatever you choose to make of it.

To get back to the situation in Boston, no matter how enthusiastic the new owners of the Braves may be at the moment, the majority of baseball fans know that they are in a tough spot in the Hub.

Yawkey and his Red Sox are in the driver's seat and the "three builders" might as well know now as later that it's a long, tough row that they have picked out to hoe.

Some Mixture

HOUSTON, Tex. Jan. 22—Houston's fourth war bond drive sports committee figured the citzenry would shell out for something different—so they booked the city's symphony orchestra for a wrestling show.

The committee was right. Four thousand of the curious bought $7,140,000 worth of bonds last night while Conductor Ernst Hoffmann and his musicians struck up a funeral march when a wrestler was butted out of the ring:

Strauss' "Blue Danube" as others butted heads, and

"Two Wrestlers and a Bass Fiddle," a special arrangement by Hoffmann, while the feature match was in progress.

Harridge Backs Ump Pay Raise

CHICAGO, Jan. 22 (INS)—Big league baseball umpires are deserving of pay raises in the opinion today of President William Harridge of the American League.

The umpires' salaries were frozen along with other wages last year and the result is that service and promotion increases cannot be given.

Harridge revealed the league's attorneys are trying to get permission from the War Labor Board and the Treasury Department to make such adjustments.

He pointed out that an umpire coming up from the minors should automatically get a raise and then another increase at the end of his first year. Under the present "frozen" salary regulations these adjustments are not possible.

Slipping Bruins Tackle Canadiens

By BILL GRIMES

With Bill Cowley, Jack Crawford and "Busher" Jackson shelved by injuries, the Bruins have three tough games listed to be played in four days, a home and home series with Canadiens and the Red Wings here next Tuesday.

The Rossmen are in Montreal, where they'll take on Les Canadiens tonight in the Forum, with no less than five of Coach Hago Harrington's Boston Olympics.

Since New Year's night, when Crawford was hurt, the Rossmen have lost four out of seven games, and one-half of those setbacks occurred after Cowley was hospitalized.

Manager Art Ross has been scouring Canada and this country for players but to no avail. So there was no alternative but to reach down and pluck a few more Olympics.

HAWKS ON NECK

Coach Dit Clapper has Al Piazzari, Guy Labrie, Al Rittinger, Russ Kopak and Tommy Brennan with him in Montreal to toss in against the Flying Frenchmen tonight. Fortunately for the Bruins, "Toe" Blake will be out of the French team's lineup with a shoulder separation and neither Ray Getliffe nor Murph Chamberlain is up to par physically.

Unless Cowley, Crawford and Jackson are available soon, the Bruins may awake some fine morning and discover the Chicago Blackhawks, now in fifth place, nipping at their heels.

Going into tonight's game with Les Canadiens, the Rossmen are only one point better in the N. H. L. standings than Detroit Red Wings, who will be hosts to the lowly New York Rangers tomorrow night.

In the event the Flying Frenchmen make a clean sweep of the week-end double header and the Red Wings knock off Rangers, the Bruins will be in fourth place when Manager Jack Adams turns Capt. "Flash" Hollett and the world champions loose here Tuesday.

MAY MISS PLAYOFFS

The Blackhawks have been blowing hot and cold all season, mostly cold. They dropped three of their first four games, then won four in a row. Since that winning streak, they've lost three straight on two occasions and then hit a new low by losing six consecutive decisions.

However, since Mike Karakas replaced Hec Highton in the nets, the Hawks, although they suffered two setbacks at the hands of the Red Wings, have beaten Rangers and tied Canadiens, which should be indication enough for the Bruins to realize Chicago might nose them out of the playoffs.

The other tilts had Waltham against Wallesley, and Framingham, the league leaders, playing Walpole, the runnerups.

Of tennis she says: "I'm crazy about the game. I hope to enter tournament play." Babe has been reinstated as an amateur.

INDIANS MAIL CONTRACTS TO 28 PLAYERS

CLEVELAND, Jan. 22 (AP)—Roger Peckinpaugh, vice-president of the Cleveland Indians, announced today contracts were mailed to 28 prospective members of the 1944 Tribe roster.

Two other contracts, those of Coach Del Baker and Outfielder Oris Hockett, were signed last fall. Manager Lou Boudreau will guide the Tribe for his third year. The coming season is the second under a three-year contract he signed a year ago.

Peckinpaugh said the 31-man roster represented his "hopes" rather than his expectations.

UP TO UNCLE SAM

Uncle Sam, through selective service, likely will make changes in the list before the team gathers for spring training March 13 at Lafayette, Ind.

An immediate roster problem involves Al Smith, veteran southpaw, who is scheduled soon for reclassification from his 3-A draft status.

The 31-squad, one of the smallest rosters in the club's history, includes:

CATCHERS — Buddy Rosar, Gene Desautels, Jim McDonnell, Jim Devlin.

INFIELDERS — Lou Boudreau (player-manager), Ken Keltner, Ray Mack, Mickey Rocco, Russ Peters, Jimmy Grant.

OUTFIELDERS — Roy Cullenbine, Jeff Heath, Oris Hockett, Pat Seerey, Clifford Mapes.

Palica, Klein, Stroupe, Paynter, McDonnell, Devlin and Mapes are recruits from the Tribe's Wilkes-Barre (Pa.) farm.

Should Smith be reclassified and inducted, Kleine would be the club's only left-handed pitcher.

Brimsek Shows In Cutter Net

Their 14-game winning streak broken by Frankie Brimsek and other members of the Curtis Bay Coast Guard team (7-1), the Olympics will take the ice in vengeful mood tonight when they face the "Cutters" in the second and final game of the series at the Garden.

It was a polyglot outfit of 'Pics that faced the former big league group before 7500 in Friday's game. Five of their members had gone to Montreal with the Bruins, and they were forced to draft players from every other club in the Eastern League. Having never even practiced together, their first defeat in 15 games came as no surprise.

KELLY, FLAMON HELP

But with one game out of the way the 'Pics should get back into stride tonight.

Although naturally disappointed over losing to a team that his original squad had taken twice this year, Harrington was enthusiastic over the play of George Kelly and Fernie Flamon, who is on loan from the Crescents.

Kelly, an RCAF reject, was a thorn in the side of the Cutters' defense and young Flamon, who started with the Pics before going to Brooklyn, gave Johnny Mariucci, former Chicago Blackhawk, a very rough evening.

Although Mariucci restrained himself he issued warning he won't take it again tonight, and some rough-tough hockey may be in the making.

STOPS 29 OF 30

But the big barrier on the road to a new streak is Frankie Brimsek, "Mr. Zero" himself, who looked better than ever while patroling the Cutters' cage.

"Frigid Frankie" turned away 29 shots while being beaten only once.

Schoolboy Five Sets Scoring Record

YANKEETOWN, Ind., Jan. 22 (AP)—There wasn't any rough stuff in the Yankeetown-Folsomville High School basketball game last night—the horne team was too busy popping in baskets from the field.

The Yanks scored 131 points—a new season record—on 65 field goals and one free throw on Folsomville's only foul. The Yanks' best previous score was 121 points against the Selvin (Ind.) Preps.

Paul Sweeney Named Weymouth Grid Coach

Paul Sweeney of Hull, assistant football coach at Weymouth High in 1941, has been chosen to coach the team which last season captured the Class B interscholastic gridiron title.

He succeeds Harry Arlanson, who recently resigned to accept a commission in the Navy.

Stuhldreher Denies Charge

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 22 (AP)—Duane Bowman, dairy plant operator, and Harry A. Stuhldreher, University of Wisconsin athletic director, today described as entirely unfounded a charge made by George Strickler, National Football League press agent, that Ted Fritsch had been offered inducements to play football for Wisconsin.

Bowman declared he had given Fritsch, an employe in his plant, no compensation other than that which he earned for services in the dairy firm. He added that plant payroll records would establish the truth of his assertion.

Stuhldreher described the matter as "entirely silly," declaring he had hoped that Strickler would publish a retraction when he was shown his error.

Roxborough Sues Fight Manager

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 22 (INS)—John Roxborough, former manager of heavyweight champion Joe Louis, today filed suit against W. A. Greenlee, Pittsburgh fight manager for $4500 alleged to be due on promissory notes.

Greenlee was manager of John Henry Lewis, who once fought Joe Louis.

Big Convoy Foils Glider Bombs

By E. B. SULLIVAN

LONDON, Jan. 22 (AP)—An attack on an Atlantic convoy by German U-boats and by planes using glider bombs was "completely frustrated" by British escort ships and U. S. and British aircraft during a four-day battle that started midway between the Azores and Portugal, it was announced today.

One U-boat was known to have been sunk, two were believed probably sunk and others were damaged. Several enemy planes were shot down.

The struggle was broken up into a series of day and night engagements, starting when 15 long-range Nazi bombers launched glider bombs at the convoy 600 miles west of Ile D'Ouessant, France.

Two of the convoy ships were damaged, but the attackers were driven off by Allied planes operating from Gibraltar and new bases in the Azores. This phase of the battle lasted 2½ hours.

The glider bombs, radio controlled, were fired by Germany's new four-engined Heinkel-177s. One British Liberator pilot said they resembled small monoplanes and performed "most unusual acrobatics."

Four-engined Focke-Wulfs also attacked with ordinary bombs. The air ministry said it was the first time in more than a year the Germans had made long-range bombing attacks on a convoy.
